fied for Wardman Glennon on his trial for neglect of duty were indicted yesterday by the Grand Jury on the same charge, and for failure to close the same house—that of Laura Mauret in Thirty-third street. The policemen were the new-made Detective Sergeants Darcey! and Shoenich and Patrolman Cox. Their indictment so soon after the Glennon trial is the direct result of their testimony at that trial. In the case of Darcey and Shoenich, Mr. Philbin and Justice Jerome were even more anxious to secure immediate indictment than in Cox's case. Darcey and Shoenich, when they testified for Glennon were plain clothes men attached to headquarters, but detailed for the time being to do duty in the Tenderloin. On the day after they testified for Glennon Police Commissioner Murphy made them detective sergeants and brought them back to duty at headquarters.

Both Shoenich and Darcey were among these sent to the Mauret woman's house to get evidence, as Glennon was. On the stand they swore that they believed it to be a French boarding house, although each of them in describing what happened when he rang the bell spoke of the woman who answered as the "madam." Shoenich and Darcey swore that after that they hung around the house and found nothing wrong with it. Darcey became so confused in his testimony that the Recorder threatened him with punishment for contempt if he did not answer the questions put to him. Cox was the officer on post. He got inside the house and served a warrant on the Mauret woman. On the stand he swore that he believed the house to be a respectable boarding house. This was after Mr. Osborne had drawn from him the admission that the women wore dresses of gaudy hues revealing a large proportion of their persons and that eight of them in such attire were sitting around the parlor when he entered.

According to Mr. Philbin he and his assistants noticed that the eyes of some of the witnesses were fixed a great deal on the back of the court room while they were giving their testimony and an investigation revealed. so Mr. Philbin says, that gation revealed. so Mr. Philbin says, that witnesses were actually receiving signals from persons who sat in the back of the room and who, Mr. Philbin intimates, were policemen. Just who these persons were Mr. Philbin would not divulge vesterday nor would any of those with whom the matter will lie after Justice Jerome takes hold. But the intimation was given that it is known who they were and that there will be interesting developments in the matter. According to Mr. Philbin the signals were such as the stroking of the forehead and the twirling of a corner of the mustache. These directed the witness on the stand to say "yes" or "no," or "I don't remember." Mr. Philbin said yesterday that Cox and Darcey especially were so ridiculous on the stand that he could not account for their conduct unless they were following such instruction.

"This signalling business." said he, "may not be a new thing but I do not know of its ever having been discovered before. The men who did the signalling were watched and the code of signals is known. We did not stop it for certain reasons which will afterward appear. The indictments to-day were approved by Justice Jerome as the District Attorney's office practically is his now. They are not a case of persecution but rather the prosecution of policemen who attempt to shield others violating the law. It is a notice to policemen that they must get out of their heads the idea which has long been there that trials in the courts are the same as trials before a police board."

The witnesses against the indicted policemen who appeared before the Grand vitnesses were actually receiving signals

The witnesses against the indicted policemen who appeared before the Grand Jury were Capt. Flood. Chief Clerk Dela-mater and Mrs. McAuliffe, who lived next door to the Mauret woman's place. All o them were called in the Glennon trial. As soon as Cox was indicted District Attorney Philbin personally notified Commissioner Murphy of it over the telephone with the pay. Commissioner Murphy suspended him and also suspended Shoenich and Darcy. The three indicted policemen were ar-raigned late in the afternoon before Re-corder Goff, who fixed bail in each case at $1,000. This they will be allowed to furnish to-day and in the meantime they were released on their own recognizances. Assistant District Attorney Byrne, who is peared against them.

Of the seventeen policemen who were sent to the house in Thirty-third street to get evidence five are now under indictneut and one, Glennon, has been con-victed Rumor had it yesterday that of he other eleven it is the intention of Justice three. These three are roundsmen, Sennett. Daily and Boses, who ever not day and duty, the others who, it was lid, would be indicted were Detective Devann y Glenon's partner, and Policenen Higgus, Hawkins, Churchill, John Tyrrel, Daniel arrell W. J. Wheaton and James southa. Justice Jerome said vesterday that he Justice Jerome said vesterday that he as soon as possible. When asked if he would proceed against any official who might go out of office on Jan 1 he said. It makes no difference whether a man is building office or not. The question is whether he has violated the criminal law, I am not going to stop the prosecution of office as long as they are within the jurisdiction of the courts.

CAST SLURS ON FRANK MOULIN. Magistrate Brann Made Sharp Beterts in

Hearing of First Wife's Suit. Frank Moulin, the comedian of the Castle Square Opera Company, who is accused by his first wife, Annie S. Moulin of 459 West Twenty-second street, of abandoning and refusing to support their ten-year-old son, was in the Centre street police court yesterday for examination by Magistrate Brann upon the charge. Mrs. Moulin No. 1 was in the court. The present Mrs. Moulin, who was Maud Lillian Berri, another Castle Square Opera singer, was not there. Mrs. Moulin told Magistrate Brann that she was educating her boy at a private school at New Brunswick, N. J. Under a decree of divorce granted her last year in Chicago, Moulin had been paying her $10 a week. She wanted her former husband put under bonds to pay this sum for the boy's maintenance.

Moulin said that at the granting of the decree in Chicago a certain sum had been set aside for Mrs. Moulin for counsel fees and some incidentals. This amount, Moulin understood, had never been paid to the complainant.

In understood, had never been paid to the complainant.

"Which goes to show," commented Magistrate Brann, "that she has been as unfortunate in lawyers as she has been in a husband."

Moulin made mild protest, then asserted that he had continued to pay $10 a week alimony, as provided by the Chicago divorce decree.

Mrs. Moulin wanted this made a matter of compulsion under the laws of New York. She said that she knew Moulin's methods. When Moulin protested at this Magistrate.

When Moulin protested at this Magistrate Brann said:

Brann said:

"I have known Mr. Moulin's methods ever since I have been on the bench—six years now."

The Court seemed to think that Moulin should be bonded here to support the boy. He reserved decision, however, until Jan. 14, when the case will come up for final disposition.

Where Capt. Cooney and His Men Couldn't -Raid Made From Zeller's Court. Through a fuss over $3 between two women Magistrate Zeller has discovered a disorderly house in West Fortieth street, to which Wixson and Kennedy, Capt.

Cooney's plain clothes men were blind. The police were called into the house on Sunday night by May Williams, who said that she and her friend, Laura Bauman, had left the house on Saturday night and had gone to live at 79 East Tenth street. She went to get $3 which Ray Mitchell, the woman who ran the house, owed her and they got into a fight. The Williams woman's face was scratched, so Wixson locked the Mitchell woman up for the night. When the case got before Magistrate Zeller yesterday in the West Side police

CAPT. FLOOD TAKEN OUT OF THE DANGER POST; SHEEHAN IN.

Five More Commanders Moved, Too -Seems to Mean That Things Are Being Made Comfortable for Tammany's Favorites Before Reform Stirs Up Trouble. Police Captain Michael Sheehan took command in the Tenderloin precinct at 4 P. M. yesterday, and Police Captain John Flood went up to the goats in The Bronx, where reformers will not be able to find so many things to make trouble about as in the White Light District.

Capt. Sheehan announced, in taking command, that he had been sent "to do police duty" and that he was going to do it, but that he'd have to acquaint himself with the precinct before he did much. When he did begin hard work, however, he wasn't "going to have any brass band accompaniment for it." Then he went to work, and Flood's sergeants and detectives began to pack up ready for a shift to make room for Sheehan's.

Seven police captains altogether were transferred by Col. Murphy yesterday. Devery, only a few days before he ceased to be Chief of Police, startled the force with probably as big a shake-up as it had ever known. Col. Murphy does not intend to follow the example set by Mr. Devery, but he says he does intend to let the force know that he is Police Commissioner. The transfers he

"No, he was not recommended," said Commissioner Murphy. "These transfers were not premeditated. They were simply brought about by emergencies. Sheehan is an efficient officer, isn't he? He was promoted by Theodore Roosevelt, and the President keeps an eye on the men who made promises to him when they were

"I think that Theodore Roosevelt is watching out for the men he promoted."

"Oh, you know that one transfer necessitates another."

There have been many police chiefs to whom Capt. Flood, as a sergeant, has been confidential adviser, but he has been closer to Devery than to anybody else, and Devery is credited with having been instrumental in elevating him to the rank of captain. Mulberry street surmises that Wardman Glennon's conviction has warned Flood that there are healther places than the that there are healthier places than the Tenderloin and he is supposed to have asked for a peaceful berth. If he did, Devery asked for a peaceful berth. If he did, Devery saw to it that the request was granted.

Capt. Sheehan has been put in the danger spot before. In reform days he had charge of the Tenderioin and is said to have then incurred the enmity of a man prominent in the police gang. Under Tammany he has been kept out of the way and it is understood that he would now prefer to be where life is more peaceful.

Capt. Gannon, who is under indictment for allowing the Webster House in East Fifteenth street to keep open, was thought to be doing nicely in the Mulberry street station, but is being put out of sight again.

NEW ENGLANDERS AT DINNER.

Gen. Miles, Gen. Woodford, Dr. Faunce, Gov. McLean and Admiral Barker Speak.

Over 500 New Englanders, by birth or by right of ancestry, sat down to dinner the brilliantly decorated ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night in honor of the 281st anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. In addition to those actually taking part in the dinner the double galleries all around the dining room were filled with ladies who listened and applauded the speakers with much enthuguests' table, those of Ambassador Choate and the Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of War. Mr. Root's seat was on the right of the chairman, William E. Dodge, Presi-the chairman, William E. Dodge, President of the society, and was separated only by one place from the seat of Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

Gen. Miles was present and right here it may be said that when a note was sent to him asking him if certain alleged interviews with him in which he was quoted as saying that the incident of his recent reprimand at the hands of the Secretary of War, was not closed, were correct, Gen. Miles sent back this written reply:

You are authorized to say what I have re-

You are authorized to say what I have re-peatedly said, that I have nothing whatever to say on the subject.

peatedly said, that I have nothing whatever to say on the subject.

And on that proposition Gen. Miles planted his feet as upon a rock and could not be moved to further utterance.

Next to Gen. Miles on the right sat J. Pierpont Morgan, who came late, but was in time to hear all the speeches. At the left of Mr. Dodge sat Gov. George P. McLean of Connecticut, and next to the Governor was Mayor-elect Seth Low. Others on the dais were Henry E. Howland, Sir Percy Sanderson, British Consul-General; William Butler Duncan, the Hon. James O'Gorman, Stuyvesant Fish, Rear Admiral Barker, Major-General John R. Brooke, the Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, the Rev. Dr. George C. McLean of Connecticut was called upon and made the humorous speech of the and made the humorous speech of ing. Among other things, he said:

Mayor-elect Low was next called upon and said:

The New Englander as he is coming to New York has brought here many things that we of the city value and are thankful for. He has brought here his idealism, his energy, his industry and his conscience. But I like to think, as one who was born in a part of what is now the city of New York, although of New England ancestry, that when he has come here he has found something also that is of value even to the men of New England. Here I think he has come into touch with a larger world. Here his vision has been widened, here his sympathies have been browdened. and said:

Gen. Miles in his sp ech said in part: Gen. Miles in his speech said in part:

I notice on this bea stiful programme no names opposite the toast to the army and navy. Hence I assume that nothing need be said for the army and navy. In fact its history has been written in crimson letters on every field and on every scene for more than a hundred years. In this toast that you have read you have said that the army and navy has maintained the honor and character of our Government at every camp and on every scene where the army has camped and where the navy has sailed, and I rejoice to be a representative of that force and rejoice that the army and havy have been enabled to maintain the character, the ideas and the principles of New England and of our great republic.
